The official eNewsletters of DCLI and ACLL post reviews of the latest legal web sites on a weekly basis. This compilation of web site reviews allows the user to access all of these resources in one convenient location. If you’ve missed the weekly reviews, here is a comprehensive list.

All About Law

All About Law is a free comprehensive legal resource. The site features over 2,000 free legal forms. It provides a search engine, allowing the user to gain access to forms. All About Law is also navigable via a list of topics such as Business, Estate Planning, and Real Estate. The site explains: "As long as it is for your own personal use only, you may print copies of this information, store the files on your computer, and use hypertext links to reference the information."

Allegheny County Bar Association

The Allegheny County Bar Association’s web site is a very useful resource for legal professionals and students, especially those located in the Pittsburgh area. Users will find numerous quick links at the top of the ACBA homepage. The "Publications" links are a particular highlight, providing access to Lawyers Journal, which publishes legal articles and provides in-depth analysis of significant court decisions. The user will also find a link to Pittsburgh Legal Journal, which is the official legal journal for both the Court of Common Pleas and the United States District Court for the Western District of Pennsylvania. Pittsburgh Legal Journal Opinions are available through this site, and are no longer available in hard-copy format. The ACBA membership directory is another key feature of this site and provides the contact information for nearly 6,600 legal professionals, in an easy to use, searchable format. Additionally, the "For Media" link includes access to a "Legal Definitions" dictionary which users can easily navigate by choosing from an alphabetical listing.
AllLa
http://w
A
http://w
A
http://w
Answ
http://w
A
http://w

AllLaw.com

AllLaw.com is a legal web site offering numerous free links, promoting itself as "the internet's premier law portal". The site provides useful links to federal and state laws, legal organizations, legal practice information, legal forms, journals & periodicals, and many other resources. A particular highlight of AllLaw is the "legal topics" page, offering links to featured sites, articles, forms, sample letters, and numerous other tools in a given legal topic area. Additionally, law professionals will find the site's legal directory helpful.

American Bar Association

http://www.abanet.org/

The American Bar Association is the largest professional organization in the world and law students will find the ABA web site particularly useful. A highlight of this resource is the "legal education" page. The legal education page provides information about getting a law degree, admission to the bar, continuing legal education, careers in the legal profession, law school students, and educating the public. The ABA offers membership in the "law student division", providing the opportunity to participate in national competitions, and network with fellow law students from around the nation.

Answers.com

http://www.answers.com/

Answers.com offers answers, or entries, from leading reference publications, as well as Q&A from the Answer.com community. The site's "Reference Library" is located on the homepage. Simply scroll to the bottom of the page and select "Law and Legal Issues". The "Law and Legal Issues" page contains links to a law dictionary, law encyclopedia, legal biographies, legal cases, legal documents, US Supreme Court, and recent major US Supreme Court decisions. Users will find the site's "Answered Questions" link most useful. Click on the "Answered Questions" link located on the left of the page. Choose "Law and Legal Issues" from the categories list. The site will provide an extensive list of legal questions and accompanying answers. The user can narrow the type of questions/answers by selecting a topic from the subcategory list, such as "law suits" or "property law". Law students and legal professionals will find Answers.com a helpful, free online resource providing useful legal information.

Appellate.net

http://www.appellate.net/

This site features Supreme Court and Appellate cases handled by Mayer Brown's Attorneys. Students seeking sample briefs will find this resource especially useful. Users can view briefs by Author, Subject Matter, or Pro Bono Cases. The site's Oral Argument page provides "links to the transcripts of these arguments, audio feeds of the arguments, and briefs in the cases." The "Appellate Court" page provides links to Official Appellate Court sites in one easy-to-browse location. The site provides the following information about the group:

_Mayer Brown's more than 60 appellate lawyers have argued approximately 200 cases before the Supreme Court-including ten in the three most recent Terms-as well as hundreds more in federal and state appellate courts across the nation._

_We are ranked as the top appellate practice in the country by both Legal 500 United States and Chambers USA 2007._
Campus Legal Information Clearinghouse

http://counsel.cua.edu/

"Provides details on how to find information and materials on specific topics of federal higher education legal compliance and how to access other parts of our page such as "Fedlaw" (our summaries of all federal laws related to higher education), "Compliance Calendar" (a listing of major dates for federal higher education compliance tasks) and "CUACounselOnline" (our occasional online newsletter of current higher education legal issues)."

Congressional Universe

http://www.lexis-nexis.com/congcomp

Congressional Universe is an excellent resource for legislative history research. It provides access to the CIS Index which indexes and abstracts congressional publications and CIS legislative histories as well as provides access to the full text of congressional reports, documents, prints, bills and Congressional Record, public laws, and United States Code Service.

CQ Politics

http://blogs.cqpolitics.com/legal_beat/

This blog, hosted by Legal Beat, focuses on Court-Congress issues from Congressional Quarterly's public website.

Legal Beat chronicles the relationship and tensions between Congress and the courts. It examines high-profile court cases that pit judges against lawmakers and takes you behind the scenes in the Senate battles over judicial nominations. It also explores lawmakers' attempts to rein in the courts and the judiciary's efforts to get more resources out of Congress.
eHow

http://www.ehow.com/

This web site includes legal information, as well as useful information on various topics. To access legal material from the homepage, just select "Legal" and then click on a desired topic, for example, "Bankruptcy Law". Here's more information about eHow from the web site:

eHow.com is an online community dedicated to providing visitors, like you, the ability to research, share, and discuss solutions and tips for completing day-to-day tasks and projects. We combine the experiential knowledge of certified experts with the practical knowledge of everyday people to help you discuss, plan, and complete things like How to Save Grocery Money Growing Herbs Indoors, How To Accept a Really, Really Bad Gift, How to Handle Health Insurance if You Lose Your Job, How to Eat Well for Less, How to Format a Hard Drive with Windows XP, and How to Remove a Red Wine Stain. Our library has more than 1.5 million articles and 150,000 high-quality videos, written and produced by experts, and also, by people just like you - people who've figured out how to complete a variety of tasks, simple and complex, and are willing to share their knowledge.

Federal Register

http://www.federalregister.gov/

The Federal Register launched a new beta web site recently. The site explains, "July 26, 2010 marks the 75th anniversary of the Federal Register Act. Join us in celebrating a proud tradition of open access to government information with the launch of our experimental Federal Register beta site". The Federal Register site includes the following features:

Notices
This category contains non-rulemaking documents that are applicable to the general public and named parties. These documents include notices of public meetings, hearings, investigations, grants and funding, environmental impact statements, information collections, statements of organization and functions, delegations, and other announcements of public interest.

Proposed Rules

This category contains proposed regulations. These documents announce and explain agencies' plans to solve problems and accomplish goals, and give interested persons an opportunity to submit comments to improve the final regulation. It also includes advance notices of proposed rulemaking, petitions for rulemaking, negotiated rulemakings, and various proposed determinations and interpretations.

Final Rules

This category contains regulations that apply to the general public and have final legal effect. It also includes interim final rules, direct final rules, and various determinations, interpretive rules, and policy statements. The documents cite to the Code of Federal Regulations, which contains the codified text of final rules, and is published annually in 50 titles.

Presidential Documents

This category contains documents signed by the President of the United States. Documents include Executive Orders, Proclamations, Administrative Orders, Presidential Memoranda, and other issuances of the President that are required or directed to be published in the Federal Register.
FDsys

http://www.gpo.gov/fdsys/

The Government Printing Office's Federal Digital System (FDsys) provides public access to Government information submitted by Congress and Federal agencies and preserved as technology changes. GPO's Federal Digital System (FDsys) is an advanced digital system that will enable GPO to manage Government information from all three branches of the U.S. Government.

Some of the main functions of the system include:

- Publishing
  The U.S. Congress and Federal agencies will be able to submit files and orders electronically to GPO for printing and publishing services, electronic distribution, and inclusion in the Federal Depository Library Program (FDLP).

- Searching for information
  Government information will reach a wider audience by providing authentic published Government information to the public through an internet-based system.

- Preserving information
  The preservation function of FDsys will ensure public access to government information even as technology changes.

- Version control
  Multiple versions of published information are common; FDsys will provide version control for government information.

FindLaw LawBrain

http://lawbrain.com/wiki/Main_Page

Findlaw recently introduced a new Wiki, "LawBrain". LawBrain is a project of FindLaw, a Thomson Reuters business, providing online legal information and Internet marketing solutions for law firms. LawBrain was launched in December 2009 as a collaborative forum to pool legal knowledge and create an interactive online space for discussion of legal topics and terms.
Gavel2Gavel

http://www.re-quest.net/g2g/

Gavel2Gavel is a free internet directory providing links to thousands of legal and government web sites. The site’s homepage is divided into 23 main categories including Attorneys & Law Firms, Bar Associations, Codes & Statutes, Employment, Internet Resources, Law School, Legal Forms, News & Media, and Reference. Each category is divided into numerous subtopics, allowing the user to browse more specialized lists. The site also features a keyword search engine, providing an alternative means of accessing the collection. Legal professionals and law students alike will find this a valuable resource.

Getlegal.com

http://www.getlegal.com/

Getlegal.com offers one of the most useful and reliable collections of online legal resources. The site is divided into three main categories, "Public", "Professional", and "Find an Attorney". The "Public" section provides general descriptive information on areas and topics of law. Featured content includes articles, legal tips, forms, and a legal dictionary. The "Professional" section includes information about law practice management, law firm marketing, and a legal research center. The "Find an Attorney" section is a legal directory that allows the user to browse by practice area. Getlegal also offers its Spanish-language resources at Fuentelegal. In addition, Getlegal is partnered with Cornell Law School to expand and improve its legal information and research content.

GPO Access

http://www.gpoaccess.gov/

GPO Access is a service of the U.S. Government Printing Office that provides free electronic access to a vast array of important information products produced by the Federal Government. The information provided on this site is the official, published version and the information retrieved from GPO Access can be used without restriction, unless specifically noted. This free service is funded by the Federal Depository Library Program. The site allows the user to search for U.S. government publications in a variety of ways. The user can browse the "A-Z Resource List", search across multiple databases, or browse resources by topic.

Google Scholar

Google continues to add more information and resources to its list of features and tools. Users can access case law and legal journals for free via Google Scholar. Visit the above address and select “Legal Opinions and Journals”. Researchers can enter key terms, such as party name, to search for legal opinions. Similarly, key terms, such as title or author can be entered to search for articles. An advanced search function allows the user to set search limits in numerous fields. Users can search all legal journals and opinions simultaneously, search only US federal court opinions, or search opinions by selecting the desired state or combination of states. The “find articles” section allows the user to assign numerous keyword strategies, as well as author, publication, and date. These features, including free and full-text access make Google Scholar a valuable resource for law students and legal professionals.

GovCourtsRecords.com

http://www.govcourtsrecords.com/

This site is the comprehensive court records resource available on the internet. It is for profit and not affiliated with any federal or state government agency. GovCourtsRecords allows the user to access publicly available court records and court cases for every state, including Pennsylvania. This resource claims to search across thousands of databases, while providing access to the material from one convenient location. Please visit the above link for more information.
Groklaw

http://www.groklaw.net/

Groklaw is a free, comprehensive legal web site, providing a multitude of useful online legal resources. The site's "legal research" link is particularly useful for law students and legal professionals. Groklaw describes their legal research feature: “This page is designed to help you find information on various topics for yourself, things like courts, cases, statutes, legal articles, and law libraries.”

There is also a separate page of Patent Links, one for all the Contracts, another listing the Courts relevant to cases we cover in depth, like the SCO litigation, a page on DRM, and one for the GPL. We also have a page on the Comes v. Microsoft, case as well as one on Microsoft litigation generally. If you are looking for lawyers in the SCO litigation, you'll find them here. Sometimes the easiest way to find something is to look through the daily Archives by keyword, if you are looking for something Groklaw has covered, or using our Search application.

Hieros Gamos

http://www.hq.org/

Hieros Gamos is a free, comprehensive, online guide offering information about worldwide laws and governments. The site features compiled directories in numerous categories including links for law students, law firms, legal jobs, and legal associations. The following information highlights these features.

The site's law student center provides resources to assist students in every step of their legal education. The user will find helpful links to consider from deciding which law school to attend to bar exam preparation. The site also provides a link list of student associations.

The Hieros Gamos directory of law firms contains links to offices throughout the globe. The user may choose from a list of links by area of practice, city, or continent. The site also provides a multi-field search engine for locating firms. The search engine allows the user to simultaneously enter terms for state/province, country, firm name, practice area, and keywords.

The legal employment section of the site provides useful links for writing an effective resume, tips on interviewing, as well as job hunting strategies. The site provides additional information regarding employment laws, discrimination, and relocating for those seeking employment in the legal profession. Additionally, the “legal association” page offers a listing of associations useful for networking and professional development. The categories include: law firm and lawyer associations, bar associations, ADR arbitration & mediation associations, and paralegal associations.

IndexMaster

Index Master provides the table of contents for treatises. It contains over 8,000 legal titles from over 65 legal publishers. It is also searchable by author, keyword, title or publisher.

International Court of Justice

The United Nations International Court of Justice web site provides updated legal information regarding the judicial body that was established by UN charter in 1945. The site includes detailed descriptions of the organization, including History, Members of Court, Presidency, Chambers and Committees, Judges ad hoc, and Annual Reports. The FAQ page answers important questions such as "What differentiates the International Court of Justice from the International Criminal Court and the ad hoc international criminal tribunals?" The highlight of this resource includes the home page, providing a list of latest decisions and press releases. The site also offers a list of all cases, jurisdiction information, bibliography, as well as additional interesting information. International Law Students and Faculty will find this web site especially useful.

Internet Law Library

LawGuru's Internet Law Library (formerly the U.S. House of Representatives Internet Law Library) was originally provided to the public courtesy of the Office of the Law Revision Counsel of the U.S. House of Representatives. This was part of the Counsel's mission to make the law available to the public.

The site provides links to a large number of legal resources relating to United States (federal and state) and foreign laws. The site also provides links to Treaties & International Law, Laws of All Jurisdictions, Law Schools & Libraries, Legal Directories, and Law Book Reviews.

JD2B

http://www.jd2b.com

Prospective law school applicants, law students, and recent graduates will find JD2B a useful resource. This web site is affiliated with Juriscape and proclaims JD2B "A Meeting Place for Law Students". It offers extensive links to law schools, job postings, and legal news. The web site and blog forum offers those looking to pursue the legal profession a platform to post messages and ask questions. The blogs and discussion board not only provide answers to law school related inquiries, but also a place to communicate and share concerns with fellow new legal professionals. Users will find a variety of links to Bar associations, CLE programs, legal directories, course outlines, and many other helpful sites.
Justia

http://www.justia.com

Justia.com is a comprehensive legal web site offering free access to case law, codes, regulations, legal articles, legal blog databases, forms, and a variety of additional legal research resources. Users are assured useful site design and accurate information. In fact, Justia is led by Findlaw co-founder Tim Stanley and produced by a collaboration of computer scientists, lawyers, marketing professionals, and librarians. User’s can choose from four main customized Google search engines, including Justia, Legal Web, Law Blogs, and Legal PodCasts. Legal practice areas, such as real estate or immigration, are prominently displayed on the front page, facilitating quick and easy selection.

Just The Law Links

http://www.justlawlinks.com/

This web resource is a subsidiary of LawResearch and provides an extensive listing of legal links in one convenient web site. Users can visit the site's popular search links. These include federal acts & codes, federal & state statutes, law libraries & schools, employment resources, and popular law subjects. Users can browse the site's directories. These directories include assessors & appraisers, tax & finance resources, insurance directory, search engines, and news resources.

Law.com

http://www.law.com/

Law.com offers access to numerous online legal resources, useful to both lawyers and students. Users can navigate the Law.com network with "Quest", the site's legal web search engine. Law.com Newswire is also an important source for the most current legal news, and users can subscribe to this e-newsletter via the site. Additional information about this resource follows:
Law.com connects legal professionals to more than 20 award-winning national and regional legal publications online, including The American Lawyer, The National Law Journal, New York Law Journal and Legal Times, and delivers top legal news electronically to a growing national and global audience of subscribers each day on The Newswire.

Through Law.com's linked information sites, legal professionals can track developments in their practice specialties in the Practice Centers, research legal technology purchases, participate in accredited online training, access VerdictSearch.com, the nation's most current verdict and settlement database, use LawJobs.com to conduct national job searches, identify expert witnesses at ALMExperts.com and purchase books, newsletters and other publications at LawCatalog.com.

LawGuru

http://www.lawguru.com

LawGuru is a comprehensive legal resource, which was originally developed as a law firm web site in 1996. Subsequently, the site grew and evolved into one of the premier legal information resources on the web. LawGuru is no longer maintained by a law firm and “is offered as a free service to the entire internet community”.

A particular highlight of LawGuru is the students section which includes a “legal research tools” link. This resource allows the user to search more than 535 legal search engines, providing access to state & federal case law, statutes, and numerous other materials. The “Daily Legal News” page offers the most current legal developments, presented in four main categories: US legal news, UK legal news, news archives, and JusticeDaily.com. Additionally, students wishing to interact with fellow law students nationwide can request a username and password to access the site’s “LawStudentGuru” community and share information and resources with their peers.
Law Library of Congress: Global Legal Information Network

http://www.loc.gov/law

The Library of Congress Law Library web site serves as a gateway to the world’s largest law library collection. As a United States government resource, access is free to the public. The highlight of this site is the Global Legal Information Network (GLIN), which can be found at the following URL: http://www.glin.gov/search.action GLIN is an international legal database offering full text access to various published legal materials. The documents are presented in their original languages. These documents include the official text of laws, regulations, judicial decisions, as well as other legal information. The material originates from governmental and international organizations throughout the world. Helpful summaries presented in English accompany each document. The database search engine allows the user to choose numerous options including legal categories, jurisdictions, dates, and subject terms. Additionally, a “subject term index” is available to assist the user in database retrieval.

TheLawNet

http://www.thelaw.net/

This subscription-based legal research site claims to be a "solution" to confusion users may experience using other proprietary or public, legal internet sites. "TheLaw.net is a boutique infomediary that makes U.S. law from all 315 Federal and state jurisdictions accessible, searchable, checkable, citable and affordable to all". Click on the above link to find out more about the LawNet's approach to online legal research.
Law Professor Blogs

http://www.lawprofessorblogs.com/

Law Professor Blogs provides a central listing of blogs designed by leading experts to assist law professors in their scholarship and teaching. The site’s blogs are listed by specialized area of law, allowing the user to easily identify a desired topic. The site offers specialized blogs such as the Chinese Law Prof Blog. Each of these blog resources offers the following highlights:

Permanent Resources and Links:

- A list of all the law professors in the field, with links to their personal web pages, along with a list of recent lateral moves, entry level hires, and visiting appointments
- A list of casebooks and other materials, with links to the books on the publisher’s web site
- Links to working papers on SSRN, colloquia, and specialized law reviews
- Links to professional organizations for faculty (AALS section, ABA section, etc.)
- Links to think tanks, U.S. , state & foreign law sources, publishers, and other web sites of interest

Daily News and Information:

- Upcoming colloquia, conferences, and meetings
- Abstracts of working papers and recently-published scholarship
- Book reviews
- Career moves
- Other items of interest regarding faculty writing and teaching

The Law Street Journal

http://thelawstreetjournal.com/

The Law Street Journal is managed by, and designed for law students. The site strives to help both current law students and individuals planning to start law school. LSJ allows users to network socially, answer questions about law school, and provide input "to form a community of support and advice". Students and legal professionals are encouraged to contribute stories or articles via the "Become a Contributor" link. LSJ is divided into information for Law School Applicants, 1L/2L, and 3L students. Additionally, the site hosts a blog where users can leave comments. Users can also add their funny, humiliating, or entertaining law school story to the site's "Dissenting Opinions" page. Law students will find all these features of LSJ especially relevant and entertaining.

LawyerExpress

LawyerExpress is a comprehensive site created by a lawyer, for practicing lawyers. The site is divided into four main categories including daily news, legal research, office tools, and break time. The daily news section offers links to online legal news links, legal periodicals, various magazines, general news, and additional resources. The legal research section links to state law, federal law, international law, legal reference, company research, and legal association web sites. The office tools section provides links to important resources necessary for the daily operation of a law office such as package delivery, travel, airlines, and tech tools. The break time section simply offers numerous recreational resources such as sports, autos, entertainment, and leisure links that a legal professional may find enjoyable.

Lawyers.com

Lawyers.com offers a Legal Help and Resources section, which legal professionals will find particularly useful. The Legal Forms and documents page is divided into two columns, “Personal” and “Business”. The user will find various topics listed in each column, for instance “Living Will”. The accompanying topic link provides a definition of living will and reasons why someone should make a living will. It will list any related links found on lawyers.com. Users will find answers to questions such as “What happens if my living will is contested?” There is a do-it-yourself search engine for forms on the right side of the page. It allows the user to choose forms by topic. If you choose “Auto Bill of Sale”, the site will invite you to “Create your FREE Automobile Bill of Sale in minutes with our easy online interview. Save, share or print your legal document immediately – no waiting!” The site also offers “Find a Lawyer” tools, allowing the user to search by area of Law or a Lawyer/Law Firm that pertains to your situation. These, and many more features, make the Legal Help & Resources page especially useful.

Law-Database.com

http://www.law-database.com/

Legal Database provides legal research information and a legal resource directory. The site's homepage is arranged by legal area, including Bankruptcy Law, Immigration Law, Tax, Law, etc. Each of these links offers descriptive overview information as well as information regarding numerous topics and subtopics for each area of law. Additional links to outside web resources specializing in these areas are also included. A particular highlight of this site is the extensive list of online legal forms links. Users will also find the "Legal Definitions" page helpful, providing an alphabetical listing of legal topics, as well as a search engine. Additionally, the site offers advertising opportunities, explaining that "Legal-Database.com reaches well over one million internet visitors a month, making it an ideal place to advertise law firms, solo practitioners, or businesses offering legal services."

Legaldocs.com

http://www.legaldocs.com/ (Copy and paste the accompanying URL in your browser)

The highlight of Legaldocs.com is free access to numerous forms in one convenient location. The site explains:

Legaldocs.com allows you to prepare customized legal documents and legal forms directly online. Choose any of the documents offered, complete the questions, click the "Submit" button, and the finished document is ready for you to either download to file, or print to your printer (downloadable or printable).
Many documents are free. All others are available from $5.50 to $89.75, depending on the complexity of the document. Almost all documents can be previewed for free.

The Legal Employment Search Site

http://legalemploy.com/

The Legal Employment Search Site is a syndicated employment resource offering numerous useful links in one easy-to-use location. The links are divided into several main categories, including Strictly Legal, which deals only with legal related employment. There is an array of sites under this listing, including American Bar Association job opportunities, state & national government listings, and comprehensive legal web site employment pages. The next portion of this site contains links to 35 law school career services. Some of these schools actually list employment opportunities on their site, while others do not. This resource also offers access to numerous general employment web sites, including America's Job Bank and Career Builder. Finally, the site lists some miscellaneous helpful sites for job seekers, such as resume resources and legal directories. The Legal Employment Search Site will prove especially useful for legal professionals seeking new employment and law students seeking their first professional position.

Legal Information Institute

http://www.law.cornell.edu/

Cornell’s site is one of the most useful and comprehensive sites for legal research. It provides links to primary and several secondary materials. The following are highlights of this site.

- Wex
  http://www.law.cornell.edu/wex/index.php/Main_Page Wex is an online legal dictionary and encyclopedia. This collaborative resource is sponsored by Cornell’s Legal Information Institute, which promotes free, public accessible legal information to internet users. The site offers an “All Articles” page, previously known as “Law About”, containing links to hundreds of specific legal terms and topics. Term links consist of concise legal definitions and topic links provide descriptive encyclopedia-like overviews. Users can browse through the extensive list of terms and topics, or use the simple search engine available near the top-center of the page. There are two additional link lists available, divided by the categories of definition and overview.

- Introduction to Basic Legal Citation
  http://www.law.cornell.edu/citation/

The Introduction to Basic Legal Citation site is another useful resource offered via Cornell’s Legal Information Institute. This site provides law students a primer for using the two main legal citation manuals: The Bluebook and ALWD Citation manual. The “What and Why?” page explains “this introduction aims at building a basic mastery of ‘legal citation’ as codified in those references – a level of mastery that should enable you to do all of your legal reading and much of your legal writing without having to reach for them.”

Legally Minded

Legally Minded is a social networking web site for legal professionals and is provided by the American Bar Association. It allows the user to find people, blogs, and groups. Users will also find numerous links to legal associations and student groups. The site features a news page containing "breaking stories on law firms, legal education, Supreme Court decisions, and more, including top stories from the ABA Journal." The jobs page provides a search engine that can be customized to sector, category, job level, type of job, and location. These and other resources make Legally Minded a valuable resource for legal professionals and law students.
Legal Research Plus

http://legalresearchplus.com/

Legal Research Plus offers a blog about new legal research information and is authored by several Advanced Legal Research instructors from Stanford University. The authors hope to share what they've learned via their blog. Users can browse content by subject, for example, the “Foreign Law” link lists blog contributions regarding the Islamic Law Database or the Jerusalem Review of Legal Studies, as well as many other posts regarding legal research and education from around the world. Additionally, the site is navigable by “Recent Posts” and “Archives” links listed prominently on the left side of the blog. LRP is a great place to access the latest information regarding legal research news and resources.

Legal Resource Links

http://www.legalresourcelinks.com/

This site is maintained by Consultwebs and offers an extensive listing of legal links. The following description can be found on the Legal Resource Links web site:

The legal links consist of more than 2,000 resources and are designed to be a legal research tool for attorneys and consumers. We invite you to read our article on Internet Legal Research. Please visit our Legal News Feeds Service Site or post to our Bulletin Board. The listing is an on-going collection of legal resources.

LegalTalkNetwork

http://legaltalknetwork.com/

LegalTalkNetwork is the premier online legal media network. LTN provides access to numerous legal podcasts including Lawyer2Lawyer, Conversations with F. Lee Bailey, ESI Report, Un-Billable Hour, Law Technology Now, and Ringler Radio. The site further explains:
Legal Talk Network was launched in May 2005, with originally produced legal podcasts, hosted by leading attorneys and legal experts. Legal Talk Network podcasts highlight the important issues in the legal profession with high profile guests in a talk show format. They're produced by professionals and available on-demand on the Legal Talk Network website, in iTunes, by free subscription to RSS and from legal portals, blogs and social networking sites (too many to list)! Listeners worldwide get the latest legal topics and trends and legal professionals make connections with colleagues in a B2B environment, helping everyone meet the challenges of a changing legal world. And sponsors reach a targeted audience in the legal community.

LegalZoom.com

LegalZoom is a commercial document web service developed by attorneys. The site utilizes the skills of legal experts, including retired judges and law school professors. LegalZoom offers commercial document services. However, law students and legal professionals will find the site also provides free access to their "Education Center". Users can select a topic from the menu, located to the left of the web page, for instance "Non-profit Corporation". The site will then provide a detailed definition of Non-profit Corporations, and a list of additional informative links regarding that topic. For instance, users can access subsequent sub-topic pages such as "Reasons to form a Non-profit Corporation", "Commercial Rights of Non-profits", or "Applying for Tax-Exempt Status".

Lexis Congressional Wiki

LexisNexis Congressional Wiki provides reference information and research guides to assist researchers using the LexisNexis Congressional suite of products. Users will find Interdisciplinary Guides, Downloads & Articles Index, Topical Research Handouts, and information about using Lexis Congressional.
The wiki is accessible to all, but can only be edited by Registered Contributors.

LexisNexis lawyer Directory Sites

martindale.com

Allows the user to search profiles of more than one million legal professionals worldwide.

lawyers.com

Provides a free, comprehensive directory of lawyers and law firms.

attorneys.com

Makes it easy for you to contact attorneys in your area.

lexisONE

www.lexisone.com

lexisONE is a product of LexisNexis and is designed "to meet the day-to-day practice demands of solo and small-firm attorneys." Content has been extended to the last ten years of States & Federal Courts. Unlike the more comprehensive subscription version of Lexis, lexisONE is free to use and provides case law, legal forms, legal news, as well as additional helpful legal resources. Some other highlights of lexisONE include:

- Search the last ten years of State & Federal Courts and U.S. SupremeCourt from 1781 to present.
Legal Web Sites Reviewed in DuqLawWire & ACLLWire (2007-2010)

- An extensive Legal Website Directory, providing links to thousands of law-related Web sites.
- Expertly written articles designed to help the small-firm attorney balance his/her personal and professional life.
- The lexisONE Alert, a twice-monthly newsletter that helps small firms stay in step with practice developments and on top of trends in the legal profession.

Lexis Web

http://www.lexisweb.com/

The following resource description is from the Lexis web site:

Lexis® Web is a legal-specific search engine that serves up free Web content only from legal sites validated by LexisNexis® attorney editors. It offers the LexisNexis legal topic taxonomy and narrows the tools valued by LexisNexis customers for reducing research time. It is unlike other search engines where researchers can get free searching but spend untold hours finding results relevant to their assignment.

Lexis Web is for legal researchers who need to find all relevant sources—be it on the Web or on paid online services.

The Library of Congress: "THOMAS" http://thomas.loc.gov/ (Copy and paste the accompanying URL in your browser)

THOMAS was launched in January of 1995, at the inception of the 104th Congress. The leadership of the 104th Congress directed the Library of Congress to make federal legislative information freely available to the public. Since that time THOMAS has expanded the scope of its offerings to include the features and content listed below:

- Bills & Resolutions
- Congressional Activity
- Congressional Record
Duquesne University Center for Legal Information

Prepared by Charles Sprowls & Dittakavi Rao
November, 2010

- Schedules & Calendars
- Committee Information
- Presidential Nominations
- Treaties
- Government Resources

Litilaw: Published articles for litigators

http://litilaw.lexbe.com/

Law students and legal professionals will find this site useful for its litigation articles, law & technology articles, and legal research collection. Litilaw offers free access to over 800 recent legal articles. "All articles are full-text, written by lawyers and have been published as part of continuing legal education (CLE) seminars, in legal journals, or are of similar quality." Additional highlights include:

- Access the latest articles and legal research listed on the Litilaw's homepage
- Register for a free monthly newsletter
- Send a page to a friend
- See reader and reviewer testimonials
- Add an article to the collection
- Use the Litilaw search engine to locate relevant articles

LLRX.com

http://www.llrx.com/

LLRX.com is a free legal web journal designed to offer legal professionals the most current information regarding online legal research. The following "LLRX Court Rules, Forms and Dockets" resource is a particular highlight of this web site.

http://www.llrx.com/courtrules

The user will find "links to over 1,400 sources for state and federal court rules, forms and dockets." The site provides three main options for finding information. First, there is a keyword search engine that allows the user to try combinations of words "including court names, states, type of material, etc." The second option is a browse feature facilitating simultaneous browsing of up to three fields. Finally, the user may browse from a list categorized by court type, type of resource, jurisdiction, and states.

LOC Guide to Law Online

The Guide to Law Online was created by The Library of Congress Public Services Division, providing a free, annotated listing of legal and government resources. The emphasis on links to full-text laws, regulations, and court decisions will prove especially useful to legal students and researchers. Furthermore, users can feel confident about finding reliable links due to the LOC expert credibility selection process. More information on this site can be found at the Guide to Law Online about page.

MyLawyer.com

This web resource offers numerous FREE legal documents. You must register to access legal documents, but it is free to register. MyLawyer.com is a project of DirectLaw., a web-based legal technology organization that has been developing new ways of delivering legal services online since 2000. DirectLaw provides a virtual law firm platform that enables law firms to deliver legal services online directly to clients. The MyLawyer.com Network of virtual law firms are individual law firms that have licensed DirectLaw 's virtual law firm technologies in order to enable their law firms to offer legal services online. These law firms deliver what are known as "unbundled legal services" directly to consumers at prices they can afford.

The National Center for State Courts

http://www.ncsc.org/default.aspx

The National Center for State Courts recently redesigned, improved, and moved their web site. NCSC strives "to improve the administration of justice through leadership and service to state courts, and courts around the world." This site offers numerous resources that both law students and legal professionals will find useful. A particular highlight includes the "Court Web Sites" page which not only offers a comprehensive list of state court web sites, but also very useful and detailed state court structure charts. The homepage includes helpful "Information Resources" links, offering access to a court topics database. Recently added resources include Continuity of Operations (COOP) Planning: A Toolkit for Pennsylvania Courts. Another highlight of the NCSC is the "Education & Careers" page, providing state and federal interpreter certification and a Latest Job Listing. Visit the NCSC site to explore these and many other important legal tools.

The National Law Journal

The National Law Journal is one of the most popular legal journals, and can be found through the Law.com web resources. This ALM website features many free legal articles and other useful information. Users will find Top Headlines, Legal Business, Supreme Court, and Law School content material. Additional highlights include, RSS Feeds, Video Center, CLE Directory, Law Jobs, Professional Announcements, and Advertising opportunities.

NationMaster

NationMaster provides a free, central location for users to compare nations on a vast array of statistical issues. The site gathers information from sources such as CIA World Factbook, the World Health Organization, and UNESCO. NationMaster’s format and navigation are nearly identical to StateMaster. In fact, both resources are products of the same organization, Rapid Intelligence, which is a web technology company located in Sydney, Australia.
NOLO

NOLO.com is the web site headquarters for one of the leading legal publishers in the United States. The company's name is derived from the legal phrase, nolo contendere, meaning "it will not be disputed". While the site offers commercially available NOLO publications, it provides access to numerous useful free legal information links. A particular highlight of this site is NOLOPEDIA, offering free self-help legal information by topic. Law students and professionals will find the featured articles and lawyer directory sections of the web site helpful as well.

Onecle

The Onecle web site is a free resource offering access to numerous contracts, including access to business contracts from SEC filings. The site features agreements in the areas of asset purchase, employment, and joint venture, just to name a few. Users will find California MCLE, CLE, Continuing Legal Education courses as well. Another useful aspect of Onecle is the Featured Job Postings web page, providing updated job postings from throughout the United States.

OnlineNewspapers.com

This free online resource provides an exhaustive list of newspapers from not only the US, but also worldwide. The site is a product of Web Wombat, creators of "the original Australian search engine." OnlineNewspapers.com provides the user numerous drop-down menus for navigation. Simply choose a desired continent, country, or state. The site will then provide links to newspapers in that specified geographic location.
Pennsylvania Bulletin

http://www.pabulletin.com/

The following description is from the Pennsylvania Bulletin web site:

The information included at this site has been derived directly from the Pennsylvania Bulletin, the Commonwealth's official gazette for information and rulemaking. We have developed this site so that the latest published information may be accessed every Friday at 9 a.m. EDT, the first moment that the information may be furnished to the public.

The Pennsylvania Bulletin Online includes the following: Statewide and local court rules; the Governor's Proclamations and Executive Orders; Actions by the General Assembly; Rulemakings by State agencies; Proposed Rulemakings by State agencies; and State agency notices.

The Pennsylvania Code

http://www.pacode.com/

The following description is from the The Pennsylvania Code web site:

Information included at this site has been derived directly from The Pennsylvania Code, the Commonwealth's official publication of rules and regulations.

Please visit the site's about page for more information.
Pennsylvania Constitution

http://www.paconstitution.duq.edu/

Duquesne University’s Pennsylvania Constitution web site is maintained by Professor Bruce Ledewitz and Dr. Joel Fishman, Co-Directors. This unique site is meant to be a primary source of information about the text, history, and meaning of the Pennsylvania Constitution. Lawyers, journalists, and members of the public are welcome to start here when beginning research about the Pennsylvania Constitution, Pennsylvania constitutional law cases pending in various courts, and current public policy debates concerning the State Constitution.

Pennsylvania Courts Web Site

http://www.aopc.org/

The Pennsylvania Unified Judicial System recently redesigned their web site. A wealth of information from and about the Pennsylvania courts has been assembled on this very useful, public accessible resource. All appellate court opinions are here as well as statewide dockets, annual statistical reports, court calendars, news releases and much more.

Pennsylvania Legal Research Web Sites

http://www.pennsylvanialegalresearch.com/

Created and maintained by Dittakavi Rao, Associate Director of DCLI, this site combines the various Pennsylvania legal web sites that are available on the Internet under different subject headings. Mr. Rao's web site is the most comprehensive collection of online PA legal resources in one easy to access location. Users will find links on the left of the home page are comprised of research guides regarding case law reporters, digests, administrative law, and other important research materials. "Quick links" provide easy user navigation. They are located at the top of the home page, and are a particular highlight of this site. The quick links provide access to such resources as the General Assembly, Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, and numerous other PA related legal sites. The Governor's Executive Orders are listed, as well, offering the most current versions of the orders in PDF format. The PA Case Law blog is "Updated Daily, cases released from the Pennsylvania Superior Court, archived by judge and topic." The site also offers a list of additional updated "Blawgs" such as the PA Elder, Estate & Fiduciary blog.

PDF for Lawyers

PDF for Lawyers is a blog that offers tips on using Acrobat software and related technology. Since it is mandatory in several courts to submit documents in PDF format, the legal community should know how to convert documents from Word to PDF, and PDF to Word, etc. PDF for Lawyers offers this type of advice and help. Additional topics include: E-Discovery, E-Filing, Forms, PDF Presentations, OCR/Paper Capture, Scanners, and many more. The legal professional that desires to utilize the most current information technology will find this blog especially useful.

PublicLegal

PublicLegal is hosted by the Internet Legal Research Group (ILRG). The site features an index of over 4000 legal web sites from all over the world. PublicLegal's forms page offers over 2000 FREE forms and documents. The homepage offers links to “Legal Profession” sites, such as America 's Largest 250 law firms, or Salaries of Legal Professionals 2010. The “Academia” page includes 2010 Raw Data law school rankings, Cost-benefit analysis of American law schools, and many other useful resources. The legal research section provides numerous resources, such as “USA index" or “Global Index”. These and other assets make PublicLegal a helpful site for law students and legal professionals.
The Public Library of Law

http://www.plol.org/

The Public Library of Law is a free resource produced by Fastcase. Although Fastcase is a proprietary entity, it does offer the following featured resources for free:

- Cases from the U.S. Supreme Court and Courts of Appeals
- Cases from all 50 states back to 1997
- Federal statutory law and codes from all 50 states
- Regulations, court rules, constitutions
- RSS Feeds for recent decisions (U.S. Supreme Court, State and Federal District Courts)

You can contact Fastcase, if more in-depth information is needed regarding these resources.

Rotunda Founding Era Collection

http://rotunda.upress.virginia.edu/

Princeton University Press and Rotunda at University of Virginia Press recently announced The Papers of Thomas Jefferson Digital Edition. Please visit the following Rotunda link for more information.

The following descriptive information is from the Rotunda site:

Rotunda's American Founding Era collection offers scholars and students at all levels an invaluable source of primary and secondary materials by some of the era's most enduring figures, including George Washington, John Adams, Thomas Jefferson, and Alexander Hamilton.

In November 2008, Rotunda released the first version of our new consolidated Founding Era platform. As publications are added to the Founding Era collection, they will become fully interoperable: cross-searchable and navigable as a collection by chronology.
State and Local Government on the Net

http://www.statelocalgov.net/

The State and Local Government Internet directory provides convenient one-stop access to the websites of thousands of state agencies and city and county governments. Use the drop-down menus on the left to view directory pages for:

- States: State Government Offices - View all the websites in a given state, from a state's home page or governor's site to the smallest counties or townships.

- Topics: The websites of state government constitutional officers, state legislatures, state judiciaries and departments across ALL states.

StateLawyers.com

http://www.statelawyers.com/

StateLawyers.com describes itself as a legal directory, allowing the user to locate attorneys by name, location or area of practice. This site offers many other useful resources in addition to the directory. One highlight is the "Practice Definition" page offering detailed descriptions of legal terms and links to additional topic resources. The "State Statutes" allows the user to browse statutes by map. The site also offers an extensive listing of professional contact information on the "Professional Organizations" page. Please visit StateLawyers.com to take advantage of these and many additional free legal resources.

StateMaster

http://www.statemaster.com/index.php

StateMaster is a free educational web resource featuring current and essential statistical information about the United States. This web site provides a central location where states are compared by referencing empirical data. The site’s information is compiled from numerous primary sources such as the US Census Bureau, the FBI, and the National Center for Educational Statistics. StateMaster’s presentation format promotes user understanding of statistical information by providing effective visual aides, like pie charts, maps, graphs and scatter plots. In order to navigate the site, a statistical category list is available, allowing the user to choose from topics such as economy, health, or transportation.

State Net

State Net is an effective resource for tracking state and federal legislative and regulatory information. The site's profile explains:

State Net delivers vital data, legislative intelligence, and in-depth reporting for people who care about the actions of government. Headquartered in Sacramento, CA, our company was created by legislative experts who invented a computerized tracking system that has evolved into the nation’s leading source of legislative and regulatory information.

State Net monitors every bill in the 50 states, District of Columbia and Congress and every state agency regulation. Clients from small state associations to giant Fortune 500 companies rely on us to report activity on their issues every day of the year. Our services are backed by a 30-year commitment to providing fast and accurate information to the government relations' community.

Supreme Court of the U.S.

The Supreme Court of the United States recently updated its web site. It contains many useful resources. Users will find a “Dockets” page allowing users to search for dockets, Case Distribution Schedule, and Special Master Reports. The Oral Arguments section offers a Supreme Court Calendar, Argument Calendars, Argument transcripts, and more. The “Merits Briefs” page provides information on where to find briefs and online merits briefs. Users will also find Bar admissions forms, court rules, court opinions, and other valuable information. The site includes a “Jobs” page, as well as information about visiting the Supreme Court.

Tarlton Law Library

http://tarlton.law.utexas.edu/tallons/content_search.html

This site is hosted by Tarlton Law Library, Jamail Center for Legal Research. Faculty and other individuals seeking publication will find this resource especially useful. The Highlight of this site is the Table of Contents database. The database is key-word searchable and offers access to the table of contents to over 750 law reviews and other scholarly works. Titles include international and U.S. publications. Additionally, the site provides a link to Washington & Lee University 's Current Law Journal Content resource, a legal periodical index with "tables of contents from a wider range of law journals than those held by Tarlton Law Library". Finally, Tarlton's posts link lists to Law Review web sites both within and outside the Unites States. The law review web sites provide useful contact information for those wishing to publish an article.

truTV Crime Library

Coverage of the famous, historical cases can be found on truTV's Crime Library. The site explains:

The Crime Library is a collection of more than 1000 nonfiction feature stories and photo galleries relating to crimes, criminals, trials, forensics and criminal profiling by prominent writers. The stories focus mostly on recent crimes, but also includes historically notorious characters dating back to the 1400s and spanning the globe.

The Crime Library is a source of entertainment and education for millions of readers throughout the world and serves as an important resource for students researching current and historical subjects and for producers of television documentaries and book authors.

The site was founded by Marilyn J. Bardsley in January 1998. Court TV, now called truTV, purchased the Crime Library in September 2000. In May 2008, The Crime Library moved to truTV.com, where it remains as the Crime Library. TruTV.com is part of Turner Entertainment Networks and owned by Time Warner, Inc.

Trust Law

www.trust.org/trustlaw

This relatively new legal web site proves especially useful for Pro Bono attorneys. TrustLaw is a Thomson Reuters Foundation Service providing free legal assistance, news, and Anti-Corruption information. The site’s “Pro Bono Zone” showcases news stories regarding legal professionals providing charitable services throughout the world. The Pro Bono Zone offers case studies, detailing various pro bono projects, such as the Kosovo Law Project. Users will also find Resources, like the PBDA Implementation Handbook: A guide to Establishing a Pro Bono Program at your Law Firm. Additionally, TrustLaw provides a Country Profile page that allows the user to gather legal, economic, and political summaries on any particular nation.
U.S. Courts

http://www.uscourts.gov/

The U.S. Courts Web site features a new and improved design. Users will find useful information regarding the Supreme Court of the U.S., the Court of Appeals, and U.S. District Courts. The site includes U.S. Courts of Special Jurisdiction, including U.S. Court of Federal Claims, U.S. Tax Court, and U.S. Court of Appeals for the Armed Services. A highlight of the site is the multimedia section, allowing users to take advantage of videos, podcasts, and photos. The U.S. Courts web site is an effective source for information from and about the Judicial Branch of the U.S. Government.

USLaw

http://www.uslaw.com/

USLaw is a legal web site for consumers, offering both free and fee-based services since 1999. The “Ask a lawyer feature” allows the user to enter a question via an electronic form. The system offers two types of answers, “Ask the community for a free answer”, or “Pay expert for rapid answer. The web site provides a “Free US Law Dictionary”, which is organized by research topic. It also offers “Legal Forms” and “Find a Lawyer” sections as well. Additionally, the “Law Blog Directory” monitors over 1000 of the best law blogs. The “Law Jobs” page allows the user to search for employment by location and job description. Individuals and small businesses may find these and other features especially helpful.

U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission

http://www.sec.gov/

The United States Securities and Exchange Commission's mission "is to protect investors, maintain fair, orderly, and efficient markets, and facilitate capital formation." This is a free, government web site providing important information to the public. The commission performs this duty by monitoring key exchange figures, such as investment advisors and securities brokers, "promoting the disclosure of important market-related information, maintaining fair dealing, and protecting against fraud." The SEC web site publishes critical investment and legal information to ensure "the functioning of efficient markets." The site's "About the SEC" page provides full-text laws & regulations, forms, and additional resources. The site's Office of Administrative Law Judges section provides initial ALJ decisions from 1960 through the current year. It also offers full-text content of noteworthy ALJ orders from 1996 through the present year. These and other highlights make the SEC web site a powerful legal resource.

WashLaw

http://www.washlaw.edu/

Washlaw is a free, comprehensive, legal research web resource developed by Washburn University School of Law. Washlaw strives to post all known online legal-related links. Highlights of this useful resource include the following:

The site's homepage lists legal topics alphabetically by subject and geographic area, including numerous international links. The directories page links to over 50 online legal directories from law schools, law firms, and other legal related sites. The federal law and government documents page "provides access to all known federal law in the United States as well as law-related government document resources. It is arranged by subject and agency." Similarly, the site maintains an extensive listing of state legal resources. There is also a page devoted to foreign, international, and United Nations legal resources. These links feature primary and secondary resources for numerous countries. A page devoted to law firm links is available, including regional, national, and international offices. The "law jobs" page not only lists employment resources, but also important professional development resources pertaining to continuing legal education, legal seminars, and bar preparation.
WestLawNext

http://west.thomson.com/westlawnext/

Westlaw recently changed its name to WestLawNext. The name change reflects numerous improvements that propel West's online research resources to the next level. Visit the above link to view the “How it Works Link”, explaining new highlights, such as the elimination of database selection in favor of jurisdiction. The information video describes more efficient means of saving an individual's research. The link includes a “What people are saying” video which describes improvements in the areas of searching, efficient organization, and ease of use. Finally, you'll find opportunities to learn more online, or attend a Preview Breakfast. Look for more information regarding WestLawNext in the March 8, 2010, issue of DuqLawWire.

WestLawNext Details

http://west.thomson.com/westlawnext/

We promised to provide additional information regarding the new WestLawNext legal research system. This new interface is marketed as “easier to use” and “a more intuitive, you-centric research system.” The system provides one simple box for however you want to search. The inviting display makes it easy for you to choose where to search in order to arrive at ranked, relevant results quickly. Users will find the new interface clean, uncluttered, and easy to use. Additional WestLawNext features:

- Filter your results by topic, date, jurisdiction, court, or publication status with just one click.
- Customize your information display, including a “reading mode” option.
- View top results all together or sorted by content type.
- New case summary feature allows you to understand at a glance what a case is about.
• Track your research with visual indicators. Mark if you have opened a document (Already Viewed), saved it to a folder (Folder), or attached personal notes to it (Note) – so you know your research is done.

• Drag-and-drop into “My Research Folders” and search 12 months of “My Research History”.

• Highlight text online for future reference.

World Legal Information Institute (WorldLII)

The World Legal Information Institute is an extremely useful international law web site maintained by the Australasian Legal Information Institute. The site is free to use and operates on a non-profit basis. The site’s database collection, catalog, and websearch are the highlights of this resource.

WorldLII Databases

http://www.worldlii.org/databases.html

WorldLII offers over 270 legal databases organized by geographical regions such as the Pacific Islands or Africa. The site explains these databases originate from 20 different nations and include “case-law, legislation, treaties, law reform reports, law journals, and other materials.” Users can choose a database, such as “Europe: England and Wales: All Cases”, and enter terms in an accompanying search engine. Results are listed by database, date, relevance, or title.

WorldLII Catalog and Websearch

http://www.worldlii.org/catalog/270.html

WorldLII provides users with a central global research facility, including links to over 15,000 legal web sites. These links are searchable via WorldLII’s catalog, which allows the user to set their search terms by key word, key phrase, document title, or Boolean query. The catalog also offers lists of categories to facilitate navigation including countries, subjects, case law, law journals, etc.